Does the LCD on the left side display RDS information when set to FM?

Yes, the left LCD will display RDS information in the US and Europe (Japan does not broadcast RDS). This is contingent on having a strong radio signal, as well as having the external antenna plugged in, and displaying information from a station that is emitting RDS data. Also there are sometimes unusual characters like question marks displayed on the left display which are interpretations of RDS codes that cannot be displayed with the current configuration. This was a choice that was made during development.
